Dear Sir or Madam

I understand that the above Act is now under consideration of review and comments are being sought from interested individuals and groups.

I'd like to add my voice in support of those seeking to limit the number of dogs that can flush out a fox to two. There is no place in modern Scotland for a pack of dogs being allowed to tear a fox, another living breathing animal, to pieces.

Please amend the Act so that it becomes more in line with the Hunting Act thus preventing the fox hunts with many hounds running over the countryside in pursuit of a fox.

Thank you,

Margaret Hayes
