

From: F Jones
To: 2002 Act Review
Subject: Review of Hunting Act. My view.
Date: 28 March 2016 23:35:06

Hello

Please strengthen the Hunting Act to ensure killing wildlife is banned. If people want to gallop around the countryside with their friends and their dogs I think it would be great fun, even have a treasure hunt, but why go to the cruel finale of ending this with a tortured wild animal being scared literally to death? A scene that should stay in the past where hunting meant food on the table, which it certainly doesn't now.

I am confident I speak for the majority of the population who love our native wildlife and hardly glimpse any.

If I do encounter briefly a wild animal I am filled with awe and respect that they can cling on in the face of our vast human occupation.

Surely Scotland needs to keep its wild life alive, it is what the country is known and loved for, unspoiled wild areas and its occupants.

We should act differently from England who is careering misguidedly into all the wrong things on so many levels, and we will reap rewards when we are compared in the future.

Please take my views seriously.

Fran Jones

This email was scanned by the Government Secure Intranet anti-virus service supplied by Vodafone in partnership with Symantec. (CCTM Certificate Number 2009/09/0052.) In case of problems, please call your organisations IT Helpdesk.

Communications via the GSi may be automatically logged, monitored and/or recorded for legal purposes.

This email has been received from an external party and has been swept for the presence of computer viruses.
