

From: angi.beckett
To: 2002 Act Review
Subject: Protection of Wild Mammals Act
Date: 29 March 2016 10:04:43

Dear Sir

I am appalled to hear that wild mammals are still being hunted for sport by hunts in Scotland. I'm sure they will proclaim it is necessary. However, brutality is never necessary. Any so-called 'vermin control' does not need to be carried out by hunts. It seems to me that allowing this type of activity is just encouraging psychopathic behaviour in endorsing cruelty and unnecessary suffering of the animals involved. I can't see how it can possibly be justified on any account and urge you to ensure in your review that any loopholes in the 2000 Act are rectified to disallow such activities and to punish those that still carry them out.

Greetings from Angi

This email was scanned by the Government Secure Intranet anti-virus service supplied by Vodafone in partnership with Symantec. (CCTM Certificate Number 2009/09/0052.) In case of problems, please call your organisations IT Helpdesk.

Communications via the GSi may be automatically logged, monitored and/or recorded for legal purposes.

This email has been received from an external party and has been swept for the presence of computer viruses.
