Children's Services: What we want to happen.

Children's social work and social care services should be within the National Care Service.

This will make sure:

- Children and families who are at risk will get good, regular services.
- Health, social work, and social care services will work better together.
- It will be easier for people to move between services.
- Services will be easier for people to get.
- Services will be built around the child, family, or person who needs support.

- One organisation is in charge of:
 - how people get services
 - how people are assessed for what services they need

- how services get money

- who is responsible for services working well.

- We will keep the links we have with Education and Early Learning and Childcare services and make sure we can work better together.
